COOPERATION IN RECOVERY PARLEY AIM

Controversy Over Relief, Unemployment and Labor Break Out at Once

COMMITTEES NAMED

One Group Favors Active Cooperation and Other Favors Conservatism

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Dec. 17.—(UP)—Efforts to swing American business and industry toward a more liberal view of the administration's planned recovery program began today at a conference of economic leaders.

Elements of controversy over unemployment, relief, labor disputes and the NRA cropped out almost as soon as the meeting started. The conference was called in an effort to form a united front for business and industry under the New Deal.

A group pleading for concrete results and a definite program encountered the opposition of those who were urging a cautious approach to recovery problems.

Those seeking action argued that the time for temporizing was ended; that events had brought a situation where timely must be abandoned in favor of definite commitments.

Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, former president of the U. S. Chamber of commerce quickly assumed a position of leadership among those looking for active results.

Strawn is a recent convert to this school. The November elections convinced him it would be futile to hold out in unswerving opposition to the Roosevelt administration.

Strawn urged the conference to adopt a program which would strengthen President Roosevelt's hand in dealing with the new congress, which convenes next month.

Ninety leaders of American business, industry and finance met together at an opening session and then divided into sub-committees to study particular phases of their problems.

C. B. Ames, chairman of the Texas company, was named chairman of the conference but Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, who is actively urging greater cooperation with the Roosevelt administration on the ground that that is the position demanded by practical realities, was a dominant figure as chairman of the steering committee.

The sub-committee chairmen:

Agriculture—Harper Sibley, Rochester, N. Y.; foreign trade—Henry D. Sharpe, Providence, R. I.; social security and relief—W. B. Bell, New York; durable goods—Walter Kohler, Kohler, Wis.; federal finance—Fred H. Clausen, Horicon, Wis.; transport—A. W. Robertson, New York; national recovery act—Malcolm Muir, New York; vice chairmen—John W. Hook, New Haven, and Charles R. Hook, Middletown, O.; business financing—George H. Houston, Philadelphia; government competition—Lewis E. Pierson, New York.

Tenure Lost By Hundreds Of Workers

Governor Is Charged With Firing Employees Before Eligible Hour

DECLARING that Gov. Frank F. Merriam had resorted to reactionary politics and had thrown hundreds of men and women out of work a few hours before they would have been eligible for civil service, Joseph P. Smith returned to Santa Ana Sunday after nearly four years as state real estate commissioner.

Smith was ousted by Merriam last week when he refused to resign. Smith, however, is holding no grudge against the governor for removing him from office, but he is incensed at the discharge of hundreds of clerks from office.

Particularly is Smith aroused over the dismissal of his stenographer, Miss Dorothy Carter. Had Miss Carter been permitted to remain in office but 48 hours longer she would have been eligible for civil service and a life position with the state, he said. In commenting on Miss Carter's discharge, Smith said:

"Nothing but reactionary politics would cause the summary removal on 20 minutes' notice by long distance telephone of an efficient and trusted employee of nearly four years' experience in the state real estate department, for the sole and only reason that she might be eligible for a civil service rating within 48 hours of such dismissal—the effective date of Amendment No. 7, which seeks to eliminate political considerations and subordinate merit in the appointment of a state employee."

Supported Measure
"Practically all state officials would cause the summary removal on 20 minutes' notice by long distance telephone of an efficient and trusted employee of nearly four years' experience in the state real estate department, for the sole and only reason that she might be eligible for a civil service rating within 48 hours of such dismissal—the effective date of Amendment No. 7, which seeks to eliminate political considerations and subordinate merit in the appointment of a state employee."

Announcement of the agreement signed by the K-W company of Los Angeles was made here by the state department of finance. Previously 65 of the 66 operators against whom injunction suits had been brought by the state, had signed compromise agreements whereby the state received a royalty for oil and gas taken from the tidelands.

Webb Shadie, acting chief of the state division of lands, said the signing of the last agreement in the disputed area would assure the state an income approaching $2,000,000 a year, depending on production.

Based on investigations instituted in July, 1933, the state originally brought action against the 66 companies for injunctions to stop the draining of oil and gas from under state-owned tidelands.

Later a compromise agreement was reached whereby the state was to be paid royalties ranging from 5 to 54 per cent of the returns from oil and gas production. The agreements were retroactive, permitting the payment of back royalties in monthly installments over a four-year period and bearing six per cent interest.

According to Shadie, the retroactive clause netted the state $850,000, and the current income from the gas and oil wells was estimated at $1,000,000 for the period.

TEN BILLIONS PUBLIC WORKS FUND PROPOSED

dangers and soil erosion; neutralize pollution and modify waste through run-off and drainage.

3. Minerals—Industry control under public supervision of capacity, production, stocks and sometimes of price in various mineral industries; prompt attention to stranded populations dependent on mines now closed; governmental promotion of scientific research.

4. Continual Planning—Create permanent public works, land, water and mineral planning boards; establish permanent national board to co-ordinate findings and recommendations.

Human Welfare

"It is the judgment of the board," said Jokes, "that the broad policies outlined would, if put into practical execution, lead to very substantial gains in the nation's wealth and in the broad distribution of human welfare at which our national policy aims."

He said "It is, of course, idle to expect that the mere declaration of a set of policies will automatically produce such results. Legislation, administration, co-operation of many different types of government on many levels, and strongly supporting public opinion—all are necessary to bring about substantial changes of the kind indicated."

Frederick A. Delano, the President's uncle, is vice-chairman of the board. Other members are George H. Dern, secretary of war; Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture; Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce; Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief administrator; Dr. C. E. Merriman, and W. C. Mitchell.

The board, in discussing public works, said a reserve of $10,000,000 "would not exceed the decline in private construction during a major depression." Public works it added, have proved their ability to "mitigate in some measure the sufferings and losses" of frozen industry.

Long Range Program

The board talked in terms of billions of dollars in outlining need for a long-range construction program. Hard surfacing of 1,750,000 miles of country roads, it said, could use $3,500,000,000. A sum of $500,000,000 more would eliminate only 5,000 dangerous grade-crossings throughout the country, whereas complete elimination would take $12,000,000,000.

Public Works projects to improve river waterways need $8,000,000,000, according to the report, and railroad transportation lines should be reconstructed and modernized. More than $550,000,000 in applications for federal aid to construct water supply and sewer systems now are pending before PWA.

Huge sums could go for low-cost housing and slum clearance. A plan of rural electrification, the board found, could be made to carry cheap light and power to between 1,000,000 and 3,000,000 of the 5,000,000 American farm families now without electric service.

The board estimated the cost of retarding 75,000,000 acres of sub-marginal land at $6 an acre, or $375,000,000.

quick and drastic retaliation against crime.

Another meeting will be held in Los Angeles on January 19 to work out further developments in the plan.

Capt. "Red" Hynes of the Los Angeles police department was named one of the directors of the group and will lead activities in this region. Clarence E. Morell, head of the state department of criminal investigation and identification, offered the facilities of his office to the other officers at the meeting.

Jackson intimated that a meeting of Orange county police officials will be held soon to form a working organization for this area.

The California plan is said to be part of a national program for crime prevention sponsored by President Roosevelt and United States Attorney General Homer Cummings.

riod between March 1, 1934, and December 31, 1934.

Shadle also pointed out that in 1927 the Standard Oil Company of California drilled wells adjacent to state-owned tidelands, but that the state could not prove and "had no reason to believe" that state oil was being tapped.

"Recently the Standard Oil company voluntarily surveyed their wells in the Huntington Beach area," Shadle said. "We have no final report on these surveys but we understand a number of these wells have penetrated state property and negotiations are underway for a complete settlement. The Standard company probably will pay the state a large sum of money."

Department officials also said that negotiations with several other companies were under way in the campaign to protect the state tidelands.

THEY HELPED OTHERS!

Here's the big crowd of nearly 2000 Santa Ana children who will get a bigger thrill out of Christmas this year because they helped those less fortunate than themselves. They attended the annual special Christmas benefit show sponsored by The Register and the Broadway theater Saturday morning and brought nearly $800 worth of food, clothing and toys for needy children.

SEN. HUEY LONG CALLS SOLONS INTO SESSION

Apparently reliable information said that the city of Baton Rouge was to be made into a governmental district, similar to the District of Columbia, under complete control of the Long machine. Other bills will authorize the establishment of a daily morning newspaper by Louisiana State university, which Long already controls, ostensibly for training of journalism students, and a 50,000 watt radio station, also under university control.

Long's political enemies, of which there are a few in the legislature, saw in these bills a vast propaganda machine controlled by the kingfish and operated for his benefit. He now operates a weekly paper in New Orleans and controls a radio station there.

Prominent among those to be punished, reports from this same source said, is the Louisiana Bar association. The association forced Long's attorney general, Gaston L. Porter, to resign under fire of the ethics committee last year. The association now will be forced to elect Porter as chairman of its executive committee, it was understood.

Death NoticesA WORD OF COMFORT

Your confidence in the simplicity of others hangs in the balance. You are suspicious of every courtesy and social custom. You suspect that there is rotteness and decay at the heart of all that appears good and beautiful. You imagine unclean, selfish or unworthy motivations behind every kind deed.
Recognize that the hurt you have suffered has warned your vision. It cannot be that all the rest of the world is wrong and that you alone see clearly. Ask God to help you see things as they really are and walk forward with new courage and hope.
Confidence and joy will come.

FEW INJURED ANNA DALL SOON TO WED, RUMORS STATE

AUTO WRECKS

Traffic accident injuries were on the decline in Orange county over the week end, with only three accidents reported and six persons being hurt, none seriously.

Lewis Hasselbrook, 43, of the state labor camp at Modjeska's Home, suffered lacerations about the face and head yesterday when his car and machine driven by Thomas Herrera, of Westminster, collided on Seventeenth street near Huntington Beach boulevard. Hasselbrook was given first aid treatment at the Orange County hospital.

Four persons were hurt Saturday afternoon when cars driven by William Babylon, 930 West Camille street, and Harry C. Minato, R. D. 1, Box 300B, Costa Mesa, collided on South Main and Edinger streets. Babylon received cuts on the forehead and the three small sons of Minato were taken to a physician's office for emergency treatment.

Lupe Lopez, 17, Verano road and Wintersburg road, was given emergency treatment at the Orange County hospital last night after his car, in which he said he was a passenger, collided with the parked car of J. E. Meador, 1329 East First street, on East Fifth street at Porter. Lopez died he was driving the car and was booked at the jail for drunkenness.

GIVEN JAIL TERM

Antonio Vasquez, charged with drunkenness, was committed to the county jail for 10 days by Judge J. G. Mitchell Saturday.

The New Deal and the Joneses

The Joneses Look To The Future With Hope

This is the twenty-fourth and final article in the series which has followed the Joneses, typical American family, through their study of the New Deal.

By WILLIS THORNTON Chapter Twenty-Four

"Christmas seems happier this year, somehow," smiled Ma Jones as she brought in the roast, and set it before Pa. "We're going to put up the wreaths and holly tomorrow. I don't know just why it is, but I do feel more Christmasy than I have for a long time."

Pa gave the carving knife a ringing swipe with the steel. "Business has been a lot better at the store," he admitted. "Even had some back bills paid up. I honestly think things are a little better. I feel a little the same way you do, Ma."

"Well, of course I do, too," chimed in John jr. "But the hopeful thing to me is the future. We're a long way from being out of the woods yet, with one-sixth of all our people on the dole for this winter. The work of making a permanent new order is all to come. But now we have hope. We didn't even have that a couple of Christmases ago."

Counting the Cost

Pa bent industriously over the roast. "It's a sort of a race, isn't it," he reflected, "between Uncle Sam's purse and time—time to get things adjusted on a new basis. Taxes can prime the pump for a while, but unless the well of business starts flowing by itself pretty soon, it'll be too bad. I'm reconciled to higher taxes if they don't get so bad as to wreck me. You don't get something for nothing, and you don't get your 'new order' built without paying a thumping bill."

Pa glanced up for a moment. "Guess you're a little surprised to hear me agree on that 'new order,'" he hazarded. "Of course I don't mean it like the Socialists and Communists, or even like you do, son. I mean it like—well, how did President Roosevelt put it in his book:

"Good government should maintain the balance where every individual may find a place if he will take it, where every individual may find safety if he wishes it, where every individual may attain such power as his ability permits, consistent with his assuming the accompanying responsibility."

Democracy Must Work

"We've got to make democracy work—because the more you see of the kind of whiplash dictatorships they have in Europe, the less you want any part of them. They're going to take a lot more thinking about it by average folks like us to make it work. We didn't have much democracy before, when you think of it. We sat back and let a few 'big-bugs' run the country. But we didn't have to. And we're not going to!"

"That's all right," cut in Pa, "but then we'll have to start thinking in bigger terms than just 'what's best for the whole country.'"

John jr. wasn't to be stopped. His eyes glowed as he warmed up to his ideas. "Why, there's no limit to what we can do in this country, if we'll be smart about it and try!" he cried. "Think what great country it is. Remember that vacation trip we made to Yellowstone Park? Miles and miles of rich farmland, and mountains and rivers, and mines and forests! We have everything. If we'll use it right. We don't have to follow the lead of little European countries that have nothing but a lot of moldy old castles and smoldering hatreds!"

The Big Job

"You know, it soars you when you think what a job we've got," said John jr. "I don't think any country ever had such a big one."

"We've got to figure out ways so that every man who wants to work can do it, and get decent

ANNA DALL SOON TO WED, RUMORS STATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(UP)—Rumors current in Washington society several weeks ago that Anna Dall, daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, soon would announce her engagement were revived today.

The rumors have linked her name with that of John Boettiger, whose resignation from the Washington bureau of the Chicago Tribune became effective yesterday. Boettiger left immediately for New York.

Constable Vote Contest To Be Decided Tuesday

Hinging upon the court's ruling with respect to 26 challenged ballots, the election contest be-spots in the current cloudy skies.

Anaheim township, and Sam L. Snodgrass, who is seeking to reverse his loss of the election November 6 by a margin of two votes, will be resumed tomorrow before Superior Judge George Freeman, of Riverside, presiding in the Orange county court for this contest.

The recount of ballots by tellers appointed by the court extended Marion's lead over Snodgrass to four votes. This result, 3790 to 3788, does not, however, include the 26 challenged ballots, 15 of which were Snodgrass votes, 11 being Marion votes.

Some of these ballots are expected to be rejected by the court tomorrow, while others probably will be admitted as valid, it is believed. The outcome of the contest, therefore, still was in doubt. If all the challenged ballots were ruled valid and counted, the contest would end in a tie, with 3801 votes for each candidate.

Police Recover Missing Autos

Two cars reported stolen over the week end were recovered yesterday, according to police and sheriff's office files.

Harry Richards, living at the Y. M. C. A., had his car stolen from near the Y yesterday afternoon and it was found a short time later by Officers C. E. Neer and Roy Hartley on Sixth street near the railroad yards.

W. D. Adams, Los Angeles, who had his car stolen from Lucy street and found it later at Stafford and Lucy streets, he reported to police.

Nothing was missing from either of the cars.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF 4-H CLUB MEMBERS RECOGNIZED IN BIG HONOR PROGRAM

Leaders and members and those interested in 4-H club work in Orange county gathered at Fullerton Union High school auditorium Saturday night for the annual Orange county 4-H achievement day, where among other awards, 276 achievement pins were awarded members.

The auditorium was well filled for the program which opened with a call to order and club pledge, and introduction of Robert Cole as chairman of the day, by Eric Eastman, assistant farm advisor of the county, who is in charge of 4-H work.

After a few introductory remarks by young Cole, Miss Helen Waer of Garden Grove led in community singing, and Harold Hayes of Los Angeles county 4-H work gave an oration on "Significance of 4-H Club Work."

H. J. Hinrichs, 4-H director of West Orange, made presentation of certificates of achievement and project to Clair Wakeham, Ensley Wood, Ray McNees, John Howell, Willard Booth, Franklin Rayburn, Roy Kobayashi, Raymond Hull, John Sedler, Leroy Christensen, John Herman, Merle Brisot, Roy Luther, Herschel Whitney and John Cuthill Jr.

Honor Certificates Given
Country Club Council President R. E. Lauener of La Habra presented certificates of honor to leaders whose clubs had completed all their projects. Those leaders included F. A. Bumgardner, R. E. Lauener, Lester Schofield, E. G. Hughes, A. A. Ehman, Mrs. Camille Nichols, Miss Eleanor Robinson, Mrs. C. Norland, Mrs. Lydia Rose Davis, Mrs. O. S. Hunt, Mrs. F. L. Benson, Mrs. G. D. Grisot, Mrs. G. B. Davis, Mrs. A. F. Schroeder, Mrs. Alfred Hansen, Mrs. William Abplanalp, Mrs. Anna Linnarts and Mrs. Venna Anderson.

The threatening calls first came to light when Rains notified California Highway Patrolman Lloyd Groover, who in turn notified McElveen, Chief Criminal Deputy Merle Dean and Chief Floyd Howard. Rains said that a man using broken English said he had the wine to sell and would stab Rains and Mrs. Ray Stapp, wife of the former proprietor of the Ice House, unless Rains changed his mind and would make the purchase.

Rains refused to buy the wine so his mysterious threatener said he would call at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon for a final answer. In the meantime, Deputy United States Marshal Frank Besser received authorization from his Los Angeles superiors to buy the wine if it should be offered so that an arrest could be made. Besser, McElveen and Wolford then remained at the Ice House until 1 a. m. Saturday but no one appeared.

The case is being taken up with the district attorney's office to see if charges will be preferred against the two men.

MAKE ARREST IN AUTO THEFT CASE

Arrested on information secured from Los Angeles sheriff's officers, Aristo Aguilera, 18, Los Angeles, has been booked at the county jail for grand theft of an automobile by Deputy Sheriff G. F. McElveen and Officer C. W. Wolford.

Aguilera admitted to officers that he stole the car from near Watts and abandoned it at Fifth and Main streets in Santa Ana on December 8. The finding of the car was reported to Los Angeles officers and the owner and a search was started for the suspect.

Aguilera was located at the home of relatives in Irvine and was transferred from the county jail to the Los Angeles county jail Saturday.

PICKING OF BERRIES VIOLATION OF LAW

With the Toyon, or red berry, appearing on California hillsides and in canyons at the Christmas season, motorists on their trips into the countryside are tempted to bring home bunches of them as decorations. This urge may lead them into trouble, it is pointed out by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Removal of the attractive growth not only decreases natural scenic beauty, but is a violation of state law, which forbids picking of Toyon berries growing on public or private land, unless permission of owners of private land has been obtained.

TWO HUSBANDS, WIFE GRANTED COURT DECREES

Leaders and members and those interested in 4-H club work in Orange county gathered at Fullerton Union High school auditorium Saturday night for the annual Orange county 4-H achievement day, where among other awards, 276 achievement pins were awarded members.

The auditorium was well filled for the program which opened with a call to order and club pledge, and introduction of Robert Cole as chairman of the day, by Eric Eastman, assistant farm advisor of the county, who is in charge of 4-H work.

After a few introductory remarks by young Cole, Miss Helen Waer of Garden Grove led in community singing, and Harold Hayes of Los Angeles county 4-H work gave an oration on "Significance of 4-H Club Work."

H. J. Hinrichs, 4-H director of West Orange, made presentation of certificates of achievement and project to Clair Wakeham, Ensley Wood, Ray McNees, John Howell, Willard Booth, Franklin Rayburn, Roy Kobayashi, Raymond Hull, John Sedler, Leroy Christensen, John Herman, Merle Brisot, Roy Luther, Herschel Whitney and John Cuthill Jr.

Honor Certificates Given
Country Club Council President R. E. Lauener of La Habra presented certificates of honor to leaders whose clubs had completed all their projects. Those leaders included F. A. Bumgardner, R. E. Lauener, Lester Schofield, E. G. Hughes, A. A. Ehman, Mrs. Camille Nichols, Miss Eleanor Robinson, Mrs. C. Norland, Mrs. Lydia Rose Davis, Mrs. O. S. Hunt, Mrs. F. L. Benson, Mrs. G. D. Grisot, Mrs. G. B. Davis, Mrs. A. F. Schroeder, Mrs. Alfred Hansen, Mrs. William Abplanalp, Mrs. Anna Linnarts and Mrs. Venna Anderson.

The threatening calls first came to light when Rains notified California Highway Patrolman Lloyd Groover, who in turn notified McElveen, Chief Criminal Deputy Merle Dean and Chief Floyd Howard. Rains said that a man using broken English said he had the wine to sell and would stab Rains and Mrs. Ray Stapp, wife of the former proprietor of the Ice House, unless Rains changed his mind and would make the purchase.

Rains refused to buy the wine so his mysterious threatener said he would call at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon for a final answer. In the meantime, Deputy United States Marshal Frank Besser received authorization from his Los Angeles superiors to buy the wine if it should be offered so that an arrest could be made. Besser, McElveen and Wolford then remained at the Ice House until 1 a. m. Saturday but no one appeared.

The case is being taken up with the district attorney's office to see if charges will be preferred against the two men.

Teams Win Contest
The Alamitos Johnnies and the Tustin Live Wires were winners in a competitive team demonstration, where the boys' and girls' teams were judged separately. Mrs. R. E. Lauener presented Josephine Denni and Edwards Ehman with club reporter's pins, and Eric Eastman presented the senior leaders with books.

The Olive Hill Billies were winners of the banner for largest per cent of parent attendance at the meeting. New seniors were welcomed by Herschel Whitney, president of the senior club, and Merle and Lucille Grisot of Tustin were awarded prizes for the best leaf collection.

The new seniors as presented and to whom John W. Crill, president of the Orange County Farm Bureau presented senior caps, are Helen Allison, Dorothy Aspin, Louise Benson, Eulda Bowman, Ruth Greenwald, Lucille Grisot, Lucille Holman, Fay Hunt, Evelyn Johnson, June Malmstrom, LuBerta Morgan, Leola Schroeder, Marjorie Choumaker, Grace Shill, Dorothy Swenson, Evelyn Witt and Elizabeth Hughes among the girls clubs; Esther Benson, Eva Gilbreath, Karen Jensen and Barbara Jan Lowry also qualified to achievement as seniors, but were under age.

Boys who were accepted are Sam Bragg, John Chaffee, Leroy Christensen, David Day, John Esketkin, Harry Hoskins, Raymond Hull, Donald Knaak, Roy Kobayashi, Walter Mitchell, Wilford Nichols, Harry Reed, Donald Wakeham and Floyd Younger. Boys under age who qualified are Robert Cook, Paul Knaak and Henry Taute.

Twelve clubs were recipients of the United States Department of Agriculture charter and seal. Three of them, Alamitos Johnnies, led by Bumgardner; Live Wires of Tustin, led by Mrs. G. D. Grisot, and the Magnolias club, led by Mrs. G. S. Davis, scored 100 per cent.

Others were Busy Needles of Cypress; Cackles and Root of La Habra; Chat 'n Sew of Hardings; Farmers of Katella; Hillbillys of Olive; Humming Birds of Katella; Sunshines Twelve of Centrals; Orange Blossom of West Orange, and the West Orange club.

The lesson sermon included these verses from the Psalms: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth.... The Lord shall preserve them from all evil; he shall preserve thy soul; The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "In divine Science, man is sustained by God, the divine Principle of being. The earth, at God's command, brings forth food for man's use. Knowing this, Jesus once said, 'Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink,'—presuming not on the prerogative of his creator, but recognizing God, the Father and Mother of all, as able to feed and clothe man as He doth the hills."

Lee passed away in Fullerton last night. His body was removed to the McAulay and Suter funeral establishment in Fullerton, to await completion of funeral arrangements and the coroner's investigation.

Lee terminated his connection with the Placentia Chamber of Commerce several years ago.

FARM BUREAU OFFICIAL HERE ON TAX MATTER

Von T. Ellsworth, head of the research bureau of the California Farm Bureau federation, arrived in Santa Ana today to confer with local Farm Bureau officials and to present the state Farm Bureau taxation program at a general meeting of Farm Bureau directors, officers, committee and department heads and Farm Center officers at a dinner meeting at 6 o'clock in the Green Cat cafe.

The Farm Bureau taxation expert met with tax committees representing the Farm Bureaus of eight Southern California counties in the Farm Bureau offices today prior to the night dinner meeting.

So far the local Farm Bureau taxation committee has made no recommendation on the state Farm Bureau program, but the recommendations are expected to come out of the meeting tonight. The state program has been carefully studied, and reports will be made tonight regarding the program.

The state taxation program of the farm organization is based on the belief that an ad valorem tax should be avoided and that the state budget should be balanced. It proposes to increase existing taxes estimated to bring in $53,000,000, and new taxes calculated to bring in $54,200,000, according to a report made by Ellsworth at the annual state Farm Bureau meeting.

Suit for divorce has been filed by George E. Venners against Elizabeth J. Venners, who was charged with cruelty. The couple wed at Detroit, Mich., June 24, 1932 and separated June 15, 1934.

ARRANGE PARTIES

YORBA LINDA, Dec. 17.—Yorba Linda grammar school will close next Wednesday with a series of parties given in individual class rooms, according to Mrs. Mabel Payne, principal. Classes will open January 2.

Rooms have been decorated in Christmas designs for the season. The entertainments will be informal and more in the order of parties than planned entertainment.

Christmas Spirit

Every organization in Lathrop Student body is engaged in Christmas activities. Probably the most outstanding celebration will be the annual Christmas treat for the little Delhi children which Mrs. Iva Webber, vice-principal, is arranging with the cooperation of every home room in the school. The girls are dressing little dolls for this occasion and both boys and girls are contributing toys.

Christmas barrels are being filled with contributions of clothing, food and all such necessities which will be distributed among needy families.

The school library is always a place of particular interest during this season. A large tree adorns the main room of the library, and many outside Christmas exhibits have been arranged about the rooms by Miss Leona Calkins, Librarian. Members of the Junior Literary club are having their Christmas party in the library.

HOLIDAY PREPARATIONS

The 9th grade girls foods classes are at work making steam puddings, Christmas cakes and cookies. Earlier in the year the girls canned fruit, made jellies and jams which they are now putting in wrappings for gifts.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The words of the Psalmist, "The Lord preserveth all them that love him," were the Golden Text in the lesson sermon on "God the Preserver of Man" yesterday at the Santa Ana First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The lesson sermon included these verses from the Psalms: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth.... The Lord shall preserve them from all evil; he shall preserve thy soul; The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "In divine Science, man is sustained by God, the divine Principle of being. The earth, at God's command, brings forth food for man's use. Knowing this, Jesus once said, 'Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink,'—presuming not on the prerogative of his creator, but recognizing God, the Father and Mother of all, as able to feed and clothe man as He doth the hills."

ART CLASSES

The 9th grade art students have been making articles for their including bill folds and in purses. They have also made Christmas cards and envelopes.

The high 8 classes have completed the making of books which they have sewed and bound.

The 7th grade classes have been doing some clay work, making statues and masks for decorative purposes.

They have also made book ends and flower bowls. Another project in their work is block print designs which resemble the patterns for linoleums. Many students have made some bound books. Those who have made such books are planning to use them in connection with a Christmas project in their English class, where they are making a collection of stories of Christmas in foreign lands.

BOYS' ASSEMBLY

Judge Morrison gave a talk on "The Values of Good Citizenship," to the boys of the low nine and high eight grades at their latest assembly. He was introduced by Principal H. G. Nelson.

Nelson Harnois led the flag salute. Eugene and Donald Hamaker entertained with a duet on the mandolin and guitar.

The program was arranged by Miss Carl.

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—What was "outstanding" athletic achievement by an individual in 1934? That's easy. It was Dizzy Dean's clinching the St. Louis Cardinals to the National league pennant and world championship.

Dean was the force and inspiration that enabled the Red Birds to accomplish the foremost feat by a team—edging out the Giants on the closing day of the campaign, after the loss of a Labor Day double-header left them trailing by seven games.

In view of the smooth and lively ball used last season, Dean's winning 30 games while losing seven and taking two out of three in the fall fashion show is a record comparable with those of outstanding lunatics of the past.

Max Baer kept knocking down Primo Carnera until the heavyweight championship was in his grasp. Barney Ross became the first lightweight leader to wear the welter wreath.

Lawson Little revealed amazing stamina and steadiness to take his place alongside of the immortal Bobby Jones as the second golfer to acquire both the British and the American amateur titles. Paul Runyan, the little man with the big spoon, took top ranking among the professionals. Harry Cotton made his countrymen like him by returning from his self-imposed exile in Belgium long enough to restore England's prestige in the royal and ancient game of bagging the British Open. Hugo Olin Dutra pluckly marched to the U. S. Open between sedatives. Winsome Virginia Van Wie captured the U. S. women's championship for the third consecutive year.

SULLIVAN AWARD FOR DEANS

Glen Cunningham ran a mile in 4:06.7. Jack Torrance put the shot 55 feet 1 1/4 inches.

Fred Perry's net blanketed the tennis courts. Dorothy Round accounted for the Wimbleton women's crown. Helen Jacobs regained ground lost abroad by carrying through nobly in the U. S. women's competition.

But none of these accomplishments quite matches the pitching exploits of Jerome Herman Dean, and in listing outstanding team performances, how about the "Me and Paul" number, the greatest brother act in baseball history?

The A. A. U. really ought to give two Sullivan awards this year, and present them to Dizzy and Daffy Dean. A lot of amateurs were better paid.

I would say that the failure of Bob Grove with the Red Sox was the biggest disappointment of the year on the part of an individual. Poor Lefty spent the better part of the grind being treated from teeth to toes, with the result that he never did get in condition. It will take another spring to tell whether the old fire ball has definitely cooled off.

Next to Grove's inability to turn in any part of the performance expected of a $125,000 purchase, I would list Carnera's game, but helpless, showing against the filipant Baer as the bulkiest disappointment of 1934.

Then comes "Schoolboy" Rowe's work in the world series. It is true that Rowe broke even in two starts, but the large lad of El Dorado suffered badly in comparison with the overworked Deans, despite the fact that spots were picked for him and his assignments carefully spaced.

TERRY FAILED DISMALLY

Bobby Jones' failure to reveal any part of his old form in the Masters' tournament was disappointing to the public, but was not altogether unexpected by golfers, who realize that the finest touch required in any game disappears with idleness.

"Cotton" Warburton, of Southern California, demonstrated how simple it is for an All-American boy to tumble into the ranks of the run-o'-mine when the blocking isn't there.

Michigan and Southern California will do as examples of team disappointment in football. The nose dive of neither was comparable to that of the Giants in the closing days of the National league race, however. Michigan and Southern California never did get started. The Giants had a stranglehold on the bunting, and were counting the swag when they collapsed as suddenly and completely as the Insull empire.

And the tactless and cantankerous Bill Terry flopped as disastrously as his team in his first real test as a leader.

Long Beach 27, Santa Ana 17.

Alhambra 32, Pasadena 24.

Through with Coast Preparatory basketball until after the Christmas holidays, Santa Ana's Christmas nevertheless will enjoy a busy week of competition. They play Coach Bill Cole's Tustin Farmers of the Orange county league on the Tustin floor at 3 p. m. tomorrow, and also plan to enter Huntington Beach's annual invitational tournament which opens Thursday.

Glendale's champions, upset in the first round by Pasadena, came from behind a 13-10 margin to defeat Coach Rees Greene's Santa Ana prep. 27-19, at Glendale Saturday night. It was the second reversal for the Saints, who bowed to San Diego 26-20 here Friday.

Established as undisputed favorites to win the 1934-35 championship, Alhambra's Moors trimmed Pasadena, 32-24, to maintain a clear record. Alhambra outpointed Long Beach, 21-17, Friday.

On a scoring spree by Dick David, veteran forward, Long Beach Poly turned in the most convincing victory of the first week by upsetting San Diego's Hillers, 37-17. In a Class B preliminary which went into extra periods, San Diego edged out the Poly Bunnies, 19-17.

Santa Ana's defense crumbled in the final quarter to allow Glendale to earn its winning margin, 10-2. The teams were deadlocked at the end of the third period, 17-17.

The Saint forwards, Kenneth Nissley and Erwin Youel, accounted for all but five of Santa Ana's 19 points. Nissley scored nine. Forward Taylor and Center Smith were the big guns of Glendale's attack. Taylor caging 10 points, Smith 9.

Removal of Leonard Lockhart, scrappy guard, on four personals crippled Santa Ana's regular combination in the second half.

Three days after they return from vacation, the Saints engage Alhambra's title-bound team here January 4, and travel to Long Beach Jan. 5. League games follow with Pasadena and San Diego there, Glendale here, Alhambra there and Long Beach here.

Party Held By Class Members

BUENA PARK, Dec. 17.—With 55 members in attendance, the Friendship Bible class of the Congregational church held its annual Christmas party Friday evening. Arrangements were under the direction of Mrs. Edgar Grabau, Mrs. Myrtle White, Mrs. Dorothy Mott, Mrs. Opal Hillman, Mrs. Lella Criswell, Mrs. Thelma Booth, Mrs. Rosalie Mitchell, and the class teacher, Mrs. J. W. Sanborn.

Sandwiches, coffee and potato chips were served after an evening spent in playing games. Holiday appointments, featuring a decorated Christmas tree, were used throughout the rooms.

NEWPORT TO AWARD PRIZES IN YULE LIGHTING CONTEST

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 17.—Three awards for Christmas lighting will be made in the Newport harbor district, with judges appointed by the Orange County Coast association making the awards. Chairman Russell C. Stroup announced today.

Prizes will be made for the best decorated home, best decorated business place and best tree decorations. Seven large Christmas trees will be placed at vantage points in the city, it was decided. They will be located at the pool in West Newport, at the Newport Library, Corona Del Mar, on the state highway approach to Balboa island, to be donated and decorated by the city, and the remainder in Balboa and Newport, to be furnished by the local committee. Mrs. Ray Burlingame is chairman of the decoration committee for Balboa, Harry Estus at Newport Beach, and Walter Spicer at Newport Heights.

A chorus of harbor singers, led by Andrew Mandery and Harriet Siegfried Underwood, will travel the footprints of the padres along the coast of Orange county Saturday evening, carrying the message of peace and goodwill to neighboring communities, it was decided.

Many other decorative features are planned by sections of the city. Corona Del Mar will install colored lights in all street lamps, and Balboa merchants will place another decorated Christmas tree on the deck of the Balboa pavilion.

It was originally planned to place a huge tree at the entrance to the harbor, but high breakers at the jetties of the past week have forced the committee to cancel these plans.

Preceding the ceremony Robert Dozier sang "At Dawnning," by Cadman, and "Until," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Margaret Day Rogers. Mrs. Rogers then played "A Medley of Love Songs" and entered into the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party took their places before the altar, which was decorated with ferns and potted plants and baskets of white chrysanthemums.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white satin cut in long lines with buttons down the back and puff sleeves. She wore a veil and carried a shower bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Miss Lucille Shackelford, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of light green taffeta and carried yellow rosebuds and baby breath. Little Miss Carroll Jean Desney, of Turlock, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a dainty frock of green georgette. The groom was attended by Floyd Lafferty, of Santa Barbara. The Rev. Paul Younger, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

Following the ceremony turkey dinner was served at the Shackelford home, for the bridal party and a group of relatives. For going away the bride wore a green crepe ensemble with black accessories. They will make their home in Santa Barbara.

Members of the operetta cast follow: Old woman in shoe, Genevieve Marshall; Santa Claus, Alfred Hartman; fairy godmother, Clarice Craven; Mother Goose, Cleora Anderson; sleep fairy, William Shaffer; Pete, Paul Calloway.

BUENA PARK, Dec. 17.—United efforts of farmers in the past have brought satisfactory results for the farmer, and continued efforts will increase those benefits, was the resounding note of the address given by John W. Crill, president of the Orange County Farm Bureau, at the meeting at Placentia Farm center Friday night.

A review of the activities of the farm bureau was given by Crill, who said the last accomplishment has been the stabilization of the arrangement of produce through the AAA.

Among other things mentioned by Crill, who urged further co-operation, was the rural credit project; the work on the water problems of the southern part of the state; the reduction of road tax through the bureau's efforts; the reduction of utility rates for pumping plants; the establishment of fruit patrol in Orange county and the united efforts through the state that brought about a re-arrangement of political boundaries.

Other speakers on the program were Ed Lang, who brought the directors' report; R. D. Flaherty, secretary-manager of the farm bureau, who told of the state convention that recently assembled at Bakersfield; Eric Eastman, farm adviser, who told of the proposed trip to Boulder dam December 29.

Fred Gleason presided at the business meeting and appointed a committee, Louis Jacobsen, W. F. Coulter, Charles Teed and Ernest Ranker to work with committees from other centers in outlining a relief project for rural districts, to care for storm water with SERA labor.

BEAUTIFICATION
Senator Borah's campaign to beautify the G. O. P. elephant is working out splendidly on the surface, but not so well underbarefoot boy with cheek of tan would leave off splitting rails, or whatever they split on the farms nowadays, and take over the chairmanship, the public from the party would have less of the best-dressed-gentleman appearance. The Republican thinkers concede it would be better to have someone with more freckles than Fletcher has.

But they consider that important only if accompanied by the adoption of new party doctrines. They do not see how that could be accomplished from a practical standpoint.

They consider Borah's anti-monopoly, constitutional liberty and wealth redistribution ideas as good issues mainly because any one can stretch them or contract them at will to fit his own transient conservative or liberal principles. In fact, they can be stretched all the way from Huey Long to Carter Glass, which is quite a distance. But to adopt them as a party platform now is another matter.

This may be said to represent in varying degrees the private view of Republicans, from the Senator Coughens type up. You will not find them coming out and saying anything like that, but you will be able to read it in their actions from now on.

In view of their eminence and influence, it would appear that there isn't going to be any party reorganization right now.

TRANSFORMATION

Your breath will be knocked out in a few weeks when you find the extent to which Republican congressmen already have reorganized themselves individually. Nobody knows the tortuous personal transformation they have gone through since the last election. No one reorganization now would center largely in throwing out Chairman Fletcher and replacing him with someone who has a more innocent facial expression. If some will know until they start voting in Congress shortly on the soldier bonus, old-age pensions, social insurance and such things.

They are going to go much further than the New Deal. Most of them have to. They are up for re-election in '36. They observed from the last election results what a candidate must do to be popular. It will be necessary for them to swallow life-long economic beliefs, in some instances. Their business and banking pals may not welcome them when they return home from the coming session. However, self-preservation is the first law in congress, as elsewhere.

Idaho beautician is gettingacks full of pats on the back out in the country. Editorial clippings on his desk are generally favorable. But the inside fact is he has been able to make no headway at all with the general run of Republican authorities who hang around Washington, in and out of Congress.

Everyone knows that you cannot transform an elephant hide into the skin the voters love to touch without some healthy internal readjustments, and the internal organs are resisting Dr. Borah's external pressure.

One reason is that they do not like Dr. Borah.

As one wise and practical Republican authority expressed it, in a different metaphor, the other day: "When a man wants to put his house in order, he does not call on the next door neighbor to do it. Borah and Nye have always been the next door neighbors of the Republican party."

RESULT

There is another more important reason. The Washington Republican authorities know that a reorganization of the party must come, but they do not believe a firm base exists for it now. To them, it is a simple question of practical politics.

Reorganization now would center largely in throwing out Chairman Fletcher and replacing him with someone who has a more innocent facial expression. If some market committees have exerted on business borrowing. Now they've abdicated their authority to a New Deal agent. And with the Treasury dictating what the Reserve Banks shall do with its own securities Secretary Morgenthau has the whole works in his hands.

Insiders understand that the quid pro quo for the surrender was positive assurance that there will be no central bank legislation. An observer remarks: "What a concession that is! When you have the meat of a walnut, what earthly point would there be in grabbing the shell too?" The conservatives are glad to save the shell at that. Their offstage surrender is much less irrevocable than formal legislation.

Also the wholesale shakeup in Federal personnel predicted when Eccles took over is off. The erstwhile blusterers have saved their jobs by recognizing when they were licked.

SALVAGE

Cross-currents are developing in the New Deal attitude toward utilities which have the power people puzzled. Almost at the moment Federal Power Commissioner Frank McNich was telling the world there would be no retreat from established policies other Washington sources supposed to be close to the throne were comforting certain utility leaders with delicate hints that the worst is over. The boys wish they knew whom to believe.

The New York banks have done a nifty job of getting out from under their German commitments.

The total amount they still hold is down to a paltry $178,000,000—roughly one-fifth of the load they once carried. They feel pretty chipper about it, too. The feat has been accomplished by some of the fanciest financial sleight-of-hand on record—featuring intricate swaps of different kinds of marks and goods. Sometimes these swaps involved trade transactions in half a dozen different countries.

But the prime transaction is credited to a wealthy individual. He used the blocked marks he couldn't get out of Germany to buy four German Diesel ships—then promptly resold them to Japan for enough to offset the mark discount and net a snappy profit besides.

SPOKE

Wall Street waits with bated breath for the presents which Santa Claus Joe Kennedy of the Securities and Exchange Commission is expected to drop in its stocking.

One will be a set of rules for permanent corporate registration on security exchanges. Easing of requirements for registering new security issues is also anticipated. Probably the boys won't act too pleased with their new toys when they get them. They realize that wouldn't be smart. But unless their scouts in contact with Santa have been kidding them they'll have reason to rejoice.

Kennedy's avowed object is to stimulate the legitimate security

Carrier Boys Get $750 In Christmas Cash Contest

TEEL, BRANDT
WINNERS OF
FIRST PRIZESSTATE POLICE OFFICERS HERE
CRACK SHOTS

Register carrier boys were being presented with $750 in prize money today following the announcement of winners in the "Cash for Christmas" contest, which was won by Duane Teel, the Santa Ana carrier No. 43, in the city division, and George Brandt, Jr., of Laguna Beach, in the suburban division.

In winning the $750 through prizes, regular commissions and bonuses, the boys secured a total of 1133 new subscriptions for the paper, which raised the total circulation substantially ahead for the same time last year.

R. M. Conklin, circulation manager, lauded the work of the boys and declared that the contest was one of the most successful ever sponsored by The Register. The boys started working for new subscriptions on November 1 and the 18 leaders in each division were awarded the special prizes.

In addition to the boys contest, the five division men participated in a similar competition, which resulted in the $10 first prize going to L. H. Van Nest and W. C. Wilson and E. W. Lasby winning second and third prizes.

Second place in the city division was hotly contested by Bryan Marsden, who won the $25 second prize and William Hoyt, who finally earned the $15 third prize. Hoyt jumped from 10,000 points to 91,000 points in the last seven days but Marsden led him with a total of 95,000 points. Teel, in first place during the entire contest, had a grand total of 117,500 points. He was fifth in the same contest a year ago.

In the suburban division, Brandt had a substantial lead with 164,000 points, while R. M. Caples of Orange, the winner of the contest last year, won the $25 second prize with 132,000 points. John Freitas of Orange was third with 105,000 points. Jack Dodge of Costa Mesa, Wayne Baker of Anaheim and Reginald Pace of Huntington Beach were tied for 17th and 17th prize, so the first two received the prizes because they had the most subscriptions.

So that the winning carriers will have their prize money in ample time for Christmas shopping, the awards are being given out at once by Conggin. Some of the carriers accepted premiums in return for the subscriptions they turned in.

The complete list of prize winners and points scored follows:

WINNERS OF CASH CONTEST

Register carrier boys have been eagerly awaiting final results of the "Cash for Christmas" contest which ended Saturday. Heading the list of winners who will receive a total of $750, are Duane Teel, city carrier on route 43, who won the $50 first prize with 117,500 points and George Brandt, Jr., of Laguna Beach, right, suburban winner of $50 with 164,000 points.

It isn't often that an officer is forced to use his gun except in target practice, but if necessary, Orange county members of the California Highway Patrol could make a fine showing with their marksmanship.

Figures on practice shooting just compiled show that several of the Orange county men are among the best in the state, especially Harry Aldrich, the peer of the local marksmen. Aldrich ranks No. 6 in the state patrol with an average of 280 bullseyes out of 300 shots on the 25 yard pistol range.

Aldrich has consistently led all his fellow officers here and made one score of 293 out of 300. He led the squad with a score of 282 for the last six months of 1933, scored 280.8 in the first six months of 1934 and made a mark of 281.9 from July to November of this shooting.

In the state as a whole, the finest marksmen scored 292 but

Aldrich ran a close sixth with 280.

Floyd Yoder of Orange county was fifteenth with a score of 270. Ray Bradfield was twenty-third with 265, and George Stinson was thirtieth with 260. There were 210 men who entered the finals of the shooting.

Squad scores for the three periods from July 1933 to December, 1934, show that Yoder was second behind Aldrich in two cases and Bradfield in one. The six highest men in each of the groups are as follows:

Last six months, 1933: Aldrich,

282; Bradfield, 269.5; Yoder, 264.7;

Stinson, 250.1; Don Squires, 250.1;

and Captain Henry Meehan, 249.4.

First six months, 1934: Aldrich,

280.8; Yoder, 271.9; Bradfield,

264.4; Meehan, 263.8; Squires and Stinson, 254.

Annual Holiday Party Held by Economics Section

Ebell Fourth Household Economics section members shared a Christmas luncheon and program Friday night when a family dinner party was held in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Leonard on West Orange Road.

Hostesses were Mesdames Walter Hisker, Lena Hewitt and J. B. Kester. They had arranged a festive setting in which a gay-decked Christmas tree was prominent. Luncheon was served buffet style, with members finding places at small tables centered with red tapers and sprays of greenery.

Serious illness prevented Eleanor Young Elliott's being present for the meeting. She was to have presented a special Yuletide program.

Part of the afternoon was given over to group singing of Christmas carols, with Mrs. W. W. Kay at the piano. Members enjoyed a gift exchange. Also, they contributed an assortment of articles for the Day Nursery.

Mrs. A. Thorndike, leader, was in charge of a short business meeting. Plans were made for the January meeting, when the usual luncheon will be followed by a program open to general membership of Ebell society.

A reader asks whether or not sour cream, when used in cake, replaces the usual shortening ingredients? Yes, unless the amount indicated is too small to shorten the cake. A cupful of sour cream is equal to 1/2 cup butter, some sour cream are still richer, it all depends on the cream content.

Sour Cream Cake

1 cup sugar
1 cup sour cream
2 eggs, well beaten
1 level tsp. soda
1 scant tsp. baking powder
1/2 cup cake flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla

If you have an electric beater, put all ingredients into the mixing bowl and turn the beater loose until the batter is smooth and creamy. Ordinary mixing requires the eggs whipped into sugar, soda foamed with cream, dry ingredients sifted and alternated with sour cream in mixing. Vanilla goes in last. Bake in two layers and put together with favorite icing.

"BUTTONS-UP-THE-BACK" FOR CHIC AND FLATTERY

PATTERN 1958

BY ANNE ADAMS

When a dress that buttons up the back to fashion, add a wide collar, cavalier cuffs and a pleated jabot, the effect, as you can see, is something to stand up and cheer about! In this frock, the jabot slips through a slash and gives a gay air to the simple bodice—a neat belt defines the nicely molded waistline—and the skirt, according to the dictates of the mode, is slim as a reed. For a bit of under-the-coat flattery, make it of bright diagonally woven wool with taffeta used for collars and cuffs. Or it would be just as smart made of black jersey, with white pique used for a crisply contrasting touch.

Pattern 1958 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 1 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

BIBLE PURPOSE PROOF OF ITS DIVINITY, SAID

The purpose of the Bible is to make known the way of salvation, and the Bible contains the only dependable light upon the future of human beings, declared the Rev. Frank E. Lindgren of Calvary church, speaking Sunday morning in the Ebells club auditorium on "The Purpose of the Bible Proof of Its Divinity."

He said:

"Every book is written with a purpose, and all things written therein tend to that particular purpose. Reading the Bible as a book, we find there is a purpose in it. The apostle, Paul, writing to Timothy, reminded him that he had known the holy scriptures which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

"The apostle, John, declares his gospel was written that his readers might believe and, through believing, might have life through the name of Jesus Christ."

"So the purpose of the Bible is primarily to make known the way of salvation. Now, if we can know this is also the purpose of God, we should have no difficulty in connecting God with the Bible, as its only author."

"We, as human beings, find ourselves inhabiting physical bodies that are 'fearfully and wonderfully made.' These bodies did not come by mere chance nor by unintelligent laws of nature, any more than an automobile did. We are forced to a belief in a creative God. Being creatures of His, He must have some information for us and desires concerning us that must come from Him alone. He wants us to know Himself, and He wants us to know ourselves in relation to Him."

"We are told in Hebrews 4 that He is the one with whom we have to do. God has an appointment with every member of the human race, and that fact constitutes a serious matter. Naturally, we do not want to face anyone we have sinned against. Much more should we dread the day that must come, for 'He has appointed a day in which He will judge the world.'

"If there is any way to get right with God before that time we should like to know of it and how it can be brought about. The whole question is taken care of in 2 Cor. 5:18-21. This satisfies both conscience and reason, and we confirm what we read in the 18th verse, that these things 'are of God.'

"The future always interests us. Fortune tellers would be unknown if we were not curious with reference to the future. But can we depend upon such? Only God can declare the 'end from the beginning.' If there is to be any light that can be considered dependable as to what lies beyond, it there, or, if there, it is not dependable, then we are left in utter darkness and can only grope in fear as the day come and go."

"We have a right to expect God to let us know the facts concerning our eternal future, and the Bible meets that expectation. But we find the human race divided into two groups in this revelation. Some are saved and others are not. The saved have their

PASTORS' EULOGY OF SAVIOR POINTS DISTINCTION BETWEEN RELIGION AND MERE MORALITY

Morality and religion are not synonymous; to be religious is to be good, but being good is not always being religious, declared the Rev. Albert Eakin Kelly, speaking in the pulpit of the United Presbyterian church yesterday morning. "There are morally exemplary citizens, as far as community standards are concerned, who are not Christians," he pointed out.

His subject, "The Greatest Exemplar," was the third discourse in a series on "Some Superlatives." The scriptural text was Hebrews 8:1, "Consider Jesus Christ." He said in part:

"A modern definition of religion is that it is a way of life. This conception gains a wide acceptance and it may for it points in right direction. Yet it is not so much a definition of religion as a way of thinking of religion. To quote 'Religion is neither apart from life, nor part of life, but life at its highest and best.' For did not Jesus say 'I am come that ye might have life, and have it more abundantly?' Religion that does not relate to everyday living in most practical fashion is good for little or nothing."

"There are two cautions to be emphasized just here. We must be careful lest we push on in our thought to the place where we shall conclude that all aspects of life are religious. They are not. And then we must not identify religion and morality. Christianity must not be made simply a glorified ethical system. To be religious in a real Christian sense is to be good; but it does not necessarily follow that to be good is to be religious in a Christian sense. There are morally exemplary citizens as far as community standards are concerned, who are not Christians."

"But having set up these fences of caution we may proceed to say that religion as a way of life, as an experience, involves two basic factors (a) devotion to the highest ideals, and (b) dependence upon the fellowship with the Divine in the attainment of these ideals."

"For the Christian there is just One who in His character and life and teachings gathers within Himself those highest ideals; for the Christian there is just one sort of daily life that is the expression of those ideals. That One for the Christian is the Lord Jesus Christ, the Greatest Exemplar, and that way of life for him is that which is in accord with the teachings of Jesus and is the application of His spirit in all of life's situations both individual and social."

"As to this second factor for the Christian, the Divine upon Whom he depends and in fellowship with Whom he finds the enabling to attain these highest ideals is He of Whom Paul could say, 'I can do all things through Christ which strengthens me.' For the Christian religion is not merely striving for an ideal, as W. E. Powell would put it, but doing so with the all we need."

outlook in such verses as John 14:1-3 and Ephesians 2:1-7. The unsaved see their destiny in 2 Thessalonians 1:7-9.

"If we turn from the Bible for our information in all these matters then we are forced to say that God who created us and in whom we live and have our being has criminally neglected us. That is unbelievable. So, the purpose of the Bible supplying what we have a right to expect from God proves its divinity."

BOOKS REVIEWED FOR WOMAN'S CLUB

GIVES REASONS FOR BACKING PENSION PLAN

Endorsing the Townsend Old Age Pension plan as "the best-thought-out plan for the aged, thus far produced," the Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church, yesterday told the Men's Community Bible Class his reasons for favoring the plan.

An earlier sermon he had preached on the subject of old age pensions apparently gave some of his hearers the false impression that he was opposed to the plan, he explained. Such is not the case, he made clear.

"I believe in the Townsend old age pension plan," he said, "because it would do away with the dole system."

"I consider it the best thought-out plan for the aged thus far produced."

"I believe in it because it will recompense millions who have sacrificed for our nation as much as any soldier that ever fought upon the battlefield. This statement is not belittling the men who have fought and died for their country; but it is remembering the fathers and mothers who gave their brave boys."

"I favor this plan because it will bring back prosperity and contentment to citizens of our nation."

"I favor it because it will destroy the spirit of selfishness, as this pension money could not be hoarded."

Baptist Church's Kiwanis Night Is Attended by Club

Services at the First Baptist church Sunday evening were thoroughly "Kiwanis."

It was Kiwanis night at the church, with a Kiwanis sermon from a Kiwanian pastor, and music by Kiwanis musicians, all heard by an audience liberally sprinkled with Kiwanis club members and their families.

The Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor of the church and member of the Santa Ana Kiwanis club, preached on the subject, "Builders We."

Jerry Hall sang a solo, with Art Cannon at the organ.

'HUMAN LIFE OF GOD' IS TOPIC OF DR. DUNNING

FULLERTON, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Margaret Buttress and her music section of Fullerton Ebells club will be in charge of the program to be held at the last meeting of 1934 at the clubhouse at 2 p. m. Friday. Mrs. Floyd Annin will preside at the business meeting.

Hostesses will be Mrs. J. Arthur Miller, Mrs. G. L. Sellon, Mrs. H. L. Parry, Mrs. Leonore Canning, Mrs. C. C. Chapman and Mrs. Raymond Thompson.

ORANGE, Dec. 17.—"The Human Life of God" was the topic of the sermon Sunday morning by Dr. James Edwin Dunning at the Methodist Episcopal church. He took as his text Second Cor. 5:19, "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself." He said in part:

"A modern definition of religion is that it is a way of life. This conception gains a wide acceptance and it may for it points in right direction. Yet it is not so much a definition of religion as a way of thinking of religion. To quote 'Religion is neither apart from life, nor part of life, but life at its highest and best.' For did not Jesus say 'I am come that ye might have life, and have it more abundantly?' Religion that does not relate to everyday living in most practical fashion is good for little or nothing."

"There are two cautions to be emphasized just here. We must be careful lest we push on in our thought to the place where we shall conclude that all aspects of life are religious. They are not.

And then we must not identify religion and morality. Christianity must not be made simply a glorified ethical system. To be religious in a real Christian sense is to be good; but it does not necessarily follow that to be good is to be religious in a Christian sense.

There are morally exemplary citizens as far as community standards are concerned, who are not Christians.

"But having set up these fences of caution we may proceed to say that religion as a way of life, as an experience, involves two basic factors (a) devotion to the highest ideals, and (b) dependence upon the fellowship with the Divine in the attainment of these ideals."

"For the Christian there is just One who in His character and life and teachings gathers within Himself those highest ideals; for the Christian there is just one sort of daily life that is the expression of those ideals. That One for the Christian is the Lord Jesus Christ, the Greatest Exemplar, and that way of life for him is that which is in accord with the teachings of Jesus and is the application of His spirit in all of life's situations both individual and social."

"As to this second factor for the Christian, the Divine upon Whom he depends and in fellowship with Whom he finds the enabling to attain these highest ideals is He of Whom Paul could say, 'I can do all things through Christ which strengthens me.'

"What an ideal, in that in should reveal the human life of God; that we should be consecrated and unblemished and irreproachable in His presence!" It is at once a glorious privilege and a mighty challenge. If we are interpreting God, as Jesus reveals Him, then the ideas of Jesus must be our ideas. Many accept Jesus who do not accept His ideas. A life in which every area of experience is wholly yielded to God is demanded. "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself. . . . and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech us by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."

"But to attain that is the practical consideration. And we know at once that attainment of such character and life as represented in Him becomes possible only as the shackles of slavery that bind us down are broken, and only as we are given the enausing from without that will strengthen us to climb that upward way. To say that and be aware of its truth is to send us back to our thesis, 'Through dependence upon Christ and in fellowship with Him the highest character and the highest life are possible.'

It is at once a glorious privilege and a mighty challenge. If we are interpreting God, as Jesus reveals Him, then the ideas of Jesus must be our ideas. Many accept Jesus who do not accept His ideas. A life in which every area of experience is wholly yielded to God is demanded. "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself. . . . and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech us by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."

Chicago's Capt. Stege tells HOW TO KEEP BOYS from BECOMING GANGSTERS

By Elizabeth Walker

FOR years the majority of American parents looked upon gunmen and gangsters as remote individuals, who had sprung mysteriously from the slums of New York or Chicago, and supplied rousing morals for the bedtime stories they told little Jackie and Junior.

True, they read occasionally of some silk-shirted swashbuckler like the late Dean O'Banion, carrying dog-eared book reviews in the pockets of his tuxedo. But he was an exception.

Most of the shotgun strategists they knew by hearsay were modeled after Al Capone, who had been spawned in the bad lands of Brooklyn, the unschooled son of illiterate Italian parents, or the "terrible Tuohys," boy-products of the infamous "Devil's Chamber" of Chicago's West Side.

Then, one day, there rose on America's machine gun skyline a new mobster menace—a country lad with a healthy smile, whose boyhood had been spent in school and on his father's sun-scorched farm in Indiana. His name was John Dillinger.

About the same time, it became known that the underworld organizer who had succeeded "Scarface Al" as Chicago's Public Enemy No. 1 was a pleasant young man of breeding and book learning, who gave a swank North Shore suburb as his birthplace, and answered to the aristocratic name of Murray Humphries.

Simultaneously, University of Illinois authorities acknowledged that John (Handsome Jack) Klutas, recently deceased don of a Cook County kidnaping ring, was a former student; and Homer Van Meter, so-called brains of Dillinger's desperadoes, was identified as the son of a nice, small-town Indiana family.

FROM the moment these gangland gallants demonstrated that crooks do not by necessity spring from the lower levels of society, but are born like other babies in cozy homes and, as they grow older, go to school, American parents underwent a subtle change. Gone was their age-old complacency. With it went their traditional belief that crime was as remote to their peaceful thresholds as gunmen and gangsters.

"How can I distinguish a future machine gun murderer from a future utilities magnate?" Anxious fathers scrutinized their growing sons sharply. And mothers tremulously asked: "What are the signs of crime?"

Seated at a flat-topped desk in a musty Chicago police station is a large, gray-haired man, powerfully built, with gray-blue eyes that twinkle shrewdly behind the polished lenses of his horn-rimmed glasses, who knows the answers to those questions. In fact, he can supply the right reply to almost any query raised on the subject of crime or criminals.

He is Supervising Capt. John A. Stege, one of America's foremost policemen and formerly chief of the Chicago detective bureau. During the 23 years he has been actively associated with that city's police department, he not only has dealt directly with more than 35,000 shotgun artists, bank robbers, safe blowers and petty thieves, but has personally questioned many of their mothers in a search for clews that might help explain their criminal behavior.

To comprehend fully what he has to say about the cause and cure of crime, let us first listen to what these mothers have told him: the composite story of why their sons went wrong. Hearing it, you undoubtedly will recognize

Capt. John A. Stege, Chicago's famous police expert, says: "I seldom run into an educated crook. Rarely one with a bona fide college education. And in the 23 years I've been a police officer, I have never arrested a Boy Scout."

what Capt. Stege has labeled "the five symptoms of crime." Indeed, you may even anticipate his recommendations to crime-preventing parents.

"How did your son get into this mess?" I always ask a mother," says Captain Stege. "Yes no matter who she is—the mother of a machine gun murderer or the mother of a cheap thief, she gives me the same story in substance. After talking to 20,000 of them, this is virtually what all of them have told me:

"EVEN as a small boy, their Tommy—or, whatever his name is—was different from his brothers and sisters, from the other children in the neighborhood. At 5 or 6, an age when most youngsters crave the companionship of other boys and girls, he wanted to

"And mothers tremulously asked: 'How can I bring up my boy not to be a gangster?'"

This man has talked to 20,000 mothers whose sons went wrong
---and here he describes the five symptoms always displayed by the criminal in the making

John Dillinger as he looked when a boy. Dillinger, says Captain Stege, was a "bad apple" from the start, and could not have been kept from a life of crime.

lar out of his mother's purse. Or, if there was no money there, he might take it out of somebody else's. Anyway he started to steal. And by the time he was 14 years of age, he had begun to commit petty crimes like swiping apples from the corner grocery, or breaking into empty houses."

"CHRONIC criminalism," says the captain, "is a disease which attacks the weak brothers of society during their schooldays. It may be cured in the majority of cases if its symptoms are recognized and treated in time."

What are these symptoms, these signs by which Mrs. Jones may tell whether little Johnnie is on the road to criminality?

There are five of them, according to the Chicago police captain, each one as apparent as the nose on Johnnie's face. Here is the list: (1) Unsociability; (2) truancy; (3) straying away from home without permission; (4) petty fibbing and filching, and (5) wanderlust.

Captain Stege stoutly believes that medical attention, given a child when he begins to exhibit one of these "queer quirks of character," will do more to curb crime than all the juvenile courts and houses of reformation now in existence. Clinics for children rather than post mortems for crooks, is his motto.

"Instead of waiting until their boy does something wrong—gets into a serious jam," asserts the captain, "parents should bounce him into a clinic the minute he begins acting differently from other children, and let the experts look him over. What for? Glandular disturbances. Neuroses. Any one of a hundred possible diseases."

NOT all the criminally ailing, however, are susceptible to clinical cure. There are those like Dillinger, says Stege, whom no amount of time or psychological treatment can make well—"the bad apples."

"Such people are born bad," asserts the captain. "Nothing anybody does can possibly change them. The only thing one can do, in fact, is to protect society from them."

To prevent the "good apples" from being contaminated by the "bad ones," he urges parents to keep their Tommies noses to the blackboard, and see that their out-of-school hours tick off 60 minutes of good, clean fun.

"Education is hell on the pocketbook," admits Captain Stege, "but it pays big dividends to parents who want their boys to grow up into decent and respectable citizens. Not only does it instill in them a love of country and a respect for the laws which have made the U. S. A. what it is, but it aids them to make wholesome associations. And this is vital."

"Only an exceptional boy is better or worse than the crowd he hangs with."

"I seldom run into an educated crook. Rarely, one with a bona fide college education. And in the 23 years I've been a police officer, I have never arrested a Boy Scout."

"Before he went, he might sneak a half dollar." (Copyright, 1934, by EveryWeek Magazine)

REDUCTION OF BANK INTEREST SHOULD STIMULATE BUSINESS

Interest on time deposits in banks is to be reduced on the first of February. A few banks are now paying only 2 1/2 per cent.

At that time there will be over 13,000 banks which will reduce to this amount. Bank interest has been one expense that debtors have found has not been reduced during the depression.

Strange to say, as the price of everything went down and private parties reduced interest charges, bank interest was the one thing that increased. To be sure, in many cases this simply increased the debt of the debtor, because, unable to meet even the lower rate of interest, he was unable to meet the higher rate and the interest, added to the principal, increased the total indebtedness.

This did not mean that banks were making money, during this period. It simply meant that they were trying to, and money was so difficult to get that those who were lucky enough to be able to borrow, or unlucky enough to owe, had to pay for the privilege.

One of the things that is certain to help real recovery and make it easier for sales of all kinds to be made, is for interest of borrowers to be reduced, which will be the best evidence that banks desire to loan.

There is no line of business which has met greater vicissitudes in certain ways than the banks, and the fatalities among banks have been very great, and would be infinitely greater, were it not for the support furnished by the government. The guarantee of bank deposits has helped amazingly and really insures against frightened withdrawals in any amount.

Service charges by the banks have been put on really as a matter of necessity, to meet expenses, and they probably are on to stay. If the interest paid is to be reduced to the time deposits in all the banks, certainly it should be reduced on the post office savings deposits. There should be a margin of difference there.

It is reaching the point, and it should reach the point where people having large amounts of cash should have greater inducement to place this cash in the natural channels of trade and not to keep it tied up, either in post office deposits or banks.

The difference between 2 1/2 per cent and six or seven per cent is a large enough inducement to lure money into business. We predict that this will be one of the means of greatly aiding the return of more prosperous conditions.

LOWERING THE COST OF BRIDES

A news item from Jerusalem states that the price of brides among the Moslems is too high. Fathers have got to come down if they expect buyers to take their daughters. The Moslem Supreme council has warned fathers that unless they do make a reduction, their daughters will be left on the shelf.

We suspect that this new situation results from the depression. It has cut everywhere else; why should it not lower the price of brides? It may be that it will do away altogether with the custom of paying fathers for daughters. Perhaps prospective brides will welcome the change. The highest bidder may not always be the most desirable groom.

In Christian countries the practice of subsidizing the father has never obtained. Yet it cannot be said that young women have been altogether indifferent to the economic status of their future husbands.

"Making a good catch" in marriage has not always been spurned by mothers with marriageable daughters of which to dispose. It has not always turned out for the best, to be sure; but the failures of such marriages have not been so common that an ambitious young woman has refused to take the risk.

In the report referred to, it is said that the young men of Palestine have gone to Cyprus for their wives in view of the high cost at home. Next we shall be hearing of a high tariff on brides demanded by fathers with marriageable daughters, and then what will the young Palestinian do about getting a wife?

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

The opening work was begun yesterday on the All-American canal, leading from the Colorado river, near Yuma, into Imperial valley. This project will cost $38,000,000.

It is a gigantic undertaking. It was fitting that this labor should be initiated with a ceremony attended by thousands of people from Imperial Valley, as well as visitors from other sections of the state.

This canal will insure, together with the other improvements in the river, that never again will Imperial valley pass through such an experience as it did when the Colorado river jumped its boundaries.

The pioneers and heroes, who visioned the possibilities of the future and took long chances on the destruction of their property and their lives, are the ones who really made possible the developed improvements which insure both property and life.

We congratulate the people of Imperial valley and we carry with it our appreciation of the services of such men as Hiram Johnson and Phil Swing, who focused the spirit and energy of the Imperial valley people upon congress, until this great dream become assured of reality.

LOUISIANA'S DICTATOR INVADES TRAINING QUARTERS

Our mind leaps across the miles to Louisiana today as we express admiration for the coach of the Louisiana State university football team. The team was in its quarters in the middle of the half.

The score was 13 to 0 against it, when "Huey," the dictator bag of wind, came in to make the boys a speech. The coach and trainer was indignant. The boys needed amica and care.

He grabbed "windy" by the arm and metaphorically "kicked" him out of the training quarters. He realized, to be sure, that he had committed lese majesty, but the boys must have admired him for it, because they went out on the field and licked their opponents, in spite of their lead, by one point.

The coach handed in his resignation. That's the only thing we don't like about it. He should have made the authorities discharge him. He deserved that final distinction and honor. And incidentally, it would have located, again, some of the pusillanimous sycophants who disgrace some of Louisiana's fine institutions.

GOVERNMENT CREDIT STILL GOOD

There is little fear that government credit is in danger when it is noted how every flotation of new government securities is oversubscribed as much as five to one.

Whatever the explanation may be—and many peculiar explanations have been made—the fact stands out that both banks and private individuals are much surer of the stability of the government than they are of private enterprise.

We shall not fret much about the gloomy prophecies coming from interested sources about the increase in the national debt and the great industrial undertakings of the government so long as the credit of the nation is as good as it is shown to be by these loans. Not that we underestimate the importance of private enterprise. But private enterprise is not going to be permitted from now on to do business on its own terms.

QUITE A MISTAKE

We note that an actor and an actress drove to Yuma on November 26th and were married. The actor has now instructed his attorney to bring an annulment of the marriage and he announces as follows: "I didn't realize what I was doing. Why I have been in love with Loretta (the one he wants to marry just as soon as he gets his present divorce) for a long, long time. I will love her always."

"Always" is certainly changing its meaning. In Hollywood parlance, it is any length of time from 10 days to longer.

It is a dizzy world. We wonder if any of these folks can get along without a date book and checking up several times a day.

Arms and the Englishman

Christian Science Monitor

The traffic in arms has been the subject of a hotly contested debate in the British House of Commons. There can be little doubt as to the main trend of British opinion. It is against war, and it is against anything likely to provoke war. It has been much stirred by the Senate inquiry in the United States, and is ready to believe that many of those who stand to profit by the sale of arms have used their influence to promote a war spirit. The increasing force of this opinion was illustrated when Sir John Simon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, promised an inquiry into the British munitions business.

The problem is not a simple one, as Sir John Simon was able to show in an earlier statement, in which he declared an arms inquiry undesirable. Unfortunately, on that occasion he overstated the case for the existing system and defended it with the dialectics of a partisan; and so did less than justice to his government. Pacifists may have underestimated the difficulties. Sir John would have done well to correct their mistakes without disparaging their enthusiasm. He failed to appreciate the spirit of men who are urging that Britain should lead the way in suppressing the trade in arms just as she led the way in suppressing the slave trade. His argument ignored the fact that the majority of Britons are not in the mood to tolerate perpetual preparation, in time of peace, of conditions favorable to a maximum of war production.

But Sir John's mistakes in presenting his case should not be allowed to obscure some of his sounder arguments. He was right when he said that as long as countries are determined to have armaments a mere prohibition of export of privately manufactured munitions will not prevent their production. It might even, as was pointed out by a commission of inquiry set up at Geneva in 1921, lead the non-producing states to set up armament plants of their own and store up stocks of munitions which they could not hope to replenish in time of emergency. Regulation of exports by each country, and concerted action between the producing countries, are the two things of immediate concern. In Great Britain no arms may be exported except by license, and no license is granted except for delivery to specified foreign governments. No export credits are granted to the exporter of munitions, and no subsidy is paid to any private firm for producing arms.

Yet it would be folly to blink the fact that the making of profits by the sale of arms provides a perpetual incentive to interested persons to keep the war scare alive, and that even the British licensing system has not operated to the entire satisfaction of public opinion. If the great producing countries could combine to forbid private production, that would remove one of the obstacles to peace. But the most practicable plan which can be urged at the moment is that which Mr. Henderson is presenting to the Disarmament Conference—that each nation should supervise the manufacture of munitions within its own territory, and only permit their export under special license. Establishment of effective licensing systems would be a useful first step toward concerted control of arms traffic.

Lost In A Fog

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

SELF-DEFENCE

When Winter comes, and soon it must,
I am not worried, bored or fussed;
Beside the blaze
I sing the praise
Of ice and frost and snow.
Though blizzards roar around my cot
I'm quite contented with my lot;
I have no fear
That I shall hear
The neighbor's radio.

This neighbor partial is to croons,
He loves the moaning of bassoons.
He also has
A taste for jazz;
Which vastly I abhor;
But, now the snow is on the ground,
I cannot hear a single sound.

His window's closed,
I'm not exposed
To torture any more.

The Spring to you may bring delight,
But when the sun shines clear and bright
A brazen blare
Is on the air
And drives all peace away.

There's only one thing I can do
Which may vindictive seem to you—
I'm going to get
A radio set
And run it night and day.

When a man tells you the people are about ready to do so and so, he means that he is.

Still, Insull deserved some punishment if only for showing so little faith in American juries.

But where is the profit in dying gamely when you never get to hear people brag on you?

It must be a great consolation to the losers to know that Insull got it honestly.

Editors should be anonymous. It is easier to believe what you see in print if you don't see the man who wrote it.

What, asks a writer, has become of our export business. Don't you read the papers? It was plowed under.

Editorial exercises under the guise of work will not serve the purpose.

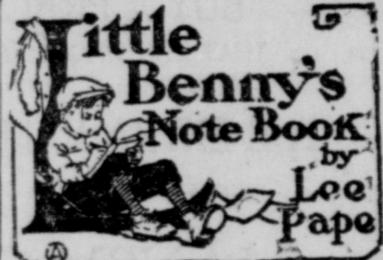

Growth demands the sincerity of creative work for its fulfillment.

Man and equip the schools for service and we won't need the parental schools, the truant schools and the reformatories that weigh us down with costs and taxes and complaints.

The schools will serve every purpose better than these institutions if they get a chance.

That's the best place for me as long as I have to go anywhere."

The machine shop teacher set him to work. He worked there for the morning session and went to classes in the afternoon. I heard nothing from him for a couple of months so I looked him up. "He's all right," said the teacher. "He does fine work. I told him that the first finished piece of work he did could be shown to you so he's trying hard to make a good tool. When he does he will be in it."

He came in one day with a shiny tool, a screw driver. Its handle was of cut brass, its shaft shiny steel. "The workmanship is perfect. You did this?" said I in astonishment.

"Yes. Can you find where I put the peg that holds the shaft?"

I looked hard for that peg but I couldn't find it. The boy knew where to look for it and pointed out what might be a shadow on the polished surface. "It's in there. Right there," said he smiling like the morning sun.

GETTING DOWN TO BRASS TACKS

Both government and business have talked back and forth too much in generalities. The time has come to get down to brass tacks on a few fundamental policies. The air would be cleared for one thing or the other if business and government would each draft in detail an "if" program. Let me say what I mean by an "if" program.

Both government and business have been heckling each other with "if" pleas. Business has been saying to government, "The stage is set, and has been set for some time, for a natural recovery." If government would only stop scaring business with a menacing uncertainty regarding the extent to which the Administration may see fit to thrust government into fields hitherto reserved for private initiative."

Government has been saying to business, "The only reason government has gone as far as it has in putting halter and bit on private initiative is that things were going from bad to worse and somebody had to do something. Government will go easy on all this experimentation. If business will only deliver the goods. Government is not out to kill capitalism. It only wants a capitalism that works. If business won't make it work, government must try."

Both pleas are understandable, but neither is likely to get us far. If and when government arrives at a clear notion of its policy, it should make a declaration to business in which it will say, "Here are the policies
